FPA'S JOURNAL OF FINANCIAL PLANNING

With monthly feature articles, interviews, columns, and peer-reviewed technical contributions, the Journal's content is dynamic, innovative, thought-provoking, and directly beneficial to financial planners in their work.

Our readers trust the Journal of Financial Planning. For 30 years, they've relied on our nonprofit objectivity and peer-reviewed articles to keep them at the top of their profession. No hype, no sensationalism. Just the facts and research they trust to help them take action. Now more than ever, readers are searching for something to trust. They find it in every issue of the Journal.

The Journal of Financial Planning is published monthly and distributed to more than 45,000 financial planning professionals.

Journal recipients actively provide services to 194 households, on average. Among those actively servicing clients, the average total value of the assets they manage for their clients is $77 million, and some manage assets in the billions.

51% of Journal of Financial Planning readers have taken action after seeing an ad.

Ads in the Journal of Financial Planning frequently introduce me to or reinforce my awareness of products/services	62%
If I am interested in buying a product or service, the ads in the Journal help me decide whom to contact	51%
I am more likely to buy from advertisers in the Journal than those in other publications	42%

Unduplicated Readership: Of our readers...

- 98% do not regularly read the Journal of Investment Consulting
- 85% do not regularly read On Wall Street
- 77% do not regularly read Wealth Manager
- 49% do not regularly read Investment Advisor
- 49% do not regularly read Financial Planning
- 47% do not regularly read Financial Advisor